Frank E. Langley, Publisher.

Entered at the Postoffice at Barre as Second Class Matter.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1905.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was

3,714

copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

It's a poor day that doesn't reveal some new and horrible crime.

It has been a rainy season, but then, think of the dust that we have avoided.

It is pleasing to learn that under Supt. W. S. Lovell conditions at the Vermont state prison have materially improved. Material improvements are also being made about the buildings, the work being done by the prisoners.
 Supt. Lovell appears to be the right man in the right place.

Publisher Frank E. Langley of the Bennington Banner announces the installation of a new press to meet the demands of the Banner's gaining circulation. Mr. Langley has made a distinct and pronounced success of the Banner, and with the increased and enlarged Banner he will be able to give Bennington a paper in every way worthy of the town and county.

While the people of Vermont are attending the agricultural fairs the ratizons of Massachusetts are the midst of a political campaign. The Republicans are divided between the "stand-patters," who do not want existing conditions changed, headed by Albert Clarke, a Vermont, and the faction of which Mr. Foss, another Vermont, is the most liberal exponent—lower tariffs on coal, lumber, and other unmanufactured products. It's a pretty fight, with no indications which side will win at present. Meanwhile the Democrats, who won such a signal victory with Gov.
 Douglas last year, are still hunting for an available candidate for the government this fall, and their convention only two weeks off. The Republican caucuses are to be held tomorrow night, and it is expected the results will clear up the situation somewhat.

CITY OF THE FUTURE.

Successful Cooperative Utopia Planned by the Working Men of the Ghent.

In his article on "The Vooruit" in the September Everybody's, Vance Thompson makes the following statements:
 "In Ghent the working men have perfected an organization which forecasts —if it does not wholly realize—the future. Unquestionably a social transformation is going on everywhere. Behind the great aggregations of capital on the one hand and labor on the other, the discerning man may make out the vague shadow of a new organization of society. In 50 years, say in a hundred years, a prophet need not be precise—the conditions of labor will have changed. Now, to visit Ghent is to visit one of these cities of the future.
 The working men there—somer than the rest of us, have broken with the past and effaced the old traditions of labor.
 They have created, if not the city of future, at all events, a tolerable preparation for it. These weavers and spinners—the worst paid laborers in the world—banded themselves into a society, 'Vooruit,' they call it, which is as though one said 'En avant!' or 'Forward!' And they have gone forward. The 'Vooruit' is more than a society; it is a city within a city, a state within a state; it is the pale dream of the old More and Robert Owen and Fourier made true and tangible. It is organized industry, organized thrift, organized well being, and a very capable organization of the joy of life."

Told by a Vermont Senator

Senator Proctor of Vermont is authority for this story: One day the Senator and some friends boarded a train for Montreal, and had been seated but a few minutes when three Canadian government officials entered and took seats directly opposite. One of the Canadians, who was noted for his strong anti-American ideas, evidently recognized the Senator, for he began a tirade of abuse of the United States, which, though directed to one of his party, was intended for the Senator's ears.
 Presently an Italian pedler entered the car, bearing in his arms a large paper mache lion.
 "There," burst forth the Canadian, pointing to the lion, "is the symbol of the greatest country on earth. See the majestic poise of the head, see the triumphant gleam of the eyes. Observe—" At this juncture the Canadian's effusion was interrupted by the brakeman, who stepped into the car, and, pointing at the Italian said: "Here, you get that thing into the baggage car. This is not a hog train."—Boston Herald.

There are still many floating mines loose in the Far East, and some of the passenger steamers have been equipped with small guns with which to blow up any which are sighted. A Chinese steamer recently found one, and five shots were fired at it at 150-yards range before the "Chink" gunner scored.
 The ship was so close to the mine then that pieces of the metal fell on the deck and one member of the crew was seriously injured.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

Lay of The Candid Man.

Oh, what a tangled web we'd weave Did we not practice to deceive.
 What awful complications Would soon result if we, forsooth, Used nothing but the naked truth In all our allegations!

It must not be inferred that I By any means defend a lie, But, really, I insist it On some occasions is as well, When some unpleasant truth to tell,
 To very slightly twist it.

You understand, I do not mean To say truth never should be seen, But it can't be denied it At times makes quite an ugly show And shocks and grieves beholders so;
 At such times we should hide it.

Society decries that sweet And soothing is a mild deceit;
 Its use will smooth and soften.
 But as for truth, ah, me! I fear That latterly we do not hear It spoken very often.—Chicago News

Uncle Zeke's Troublesome Cats.

The following story is told of an elderly gentleman, known as Uncle Zeke, at North Troy, Vt.:

While stopping at a certain hotel in the northern part of the state he called at the office one morning and the following conversation took place:
 "Landlord, the darn cats in this house made so much noise last night that I couldn't sleep a minute."
 The landlord laughingly replied:
 "Why didn't you get up and put them out, Zeke?"
 "Well," said Uncle Zeke, "I didn't know they was there till morning."— Boston Herald.

To Inspect Central Vermont.

St. Albans, Sept. 25.—The state board of railroad commissioners, comprising the Hon. Fuller C. Smith of this city, Col. Henry S. Bingham of Bennington and George T. Howard of Craftsbury, will leave on Monday for Brattleboro, where the inspection of the Central Vermont system will be begun on the following day. The West River railroad will be inspected first, after which the commission will work north.

CONCLUDING SESSION.

Sovereign Grand Lodge Odd Fellows Discuss Important Questions.

Philadelphia, Sept. 25.—The concluding session of the sovereign Grand lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows was held Saturday.

Two important questions were discussed, one dealing with the proposed affiliation of the order with the Manchester Unity in England, and the other the proposed co-operation with the corporation which controls 11,000 acres of land in Las Vegas, N. M., looking to the enlargement of the sanitarium for con-sumptives.

This proposition involves the appropriation of $1,000,000.

Action on the independence of the Patriarchs Militant and on the proposition to increase the membership of the branch by recruits was deferred until the next annual conference at Toronto.

A special committee was instructed to learn the sentiments of the cautions all over the United States and report at the next session. The transfer of membership question was left over until next year, to give a special committee, including Mr. Pinkerton of Massachusetts, an opportunity to draft a suitable law applicable to subordinate lodges, encampments, Rebekah lodges and Patriarchs Militant.

No action was taken on the proposed affiliation with the Manchester Unity nor on the enlargement of the sanitarium at Las Vegas.

Sad Little Boy Who Smoked.

Once upon a time, Willie, there was a little boy who said to himself: "My papa smokes, and Mr. Brown smokes, and Mr. Smith, and—oh, almost any man I know, and if I can smoke, too, I will be real manly."

So the little boy took one of papa's cigars and went out behind the barn and lighted it—the cigar, not the barn, although little boys sometimes light the barn too.

Then he took a few puffs, and oh, they were so beautiful.

Then he took some more puffs, and they were even more beautiful!
 He took some more puffs and said to himself: "This is grand! I am almost a man now."

Then he took some more puffs and you will be surprised to hear it, Willie, but he noticed something. It was the queerest something! It began with his little inside, and made it feel as if he had not eaten anything since a week ago last Thursday and would not care to eat anything more before three years from next Monday. Then it set his hair to prickling and he perspired pails and pails of ice water. After that—but it is better to leave the little boy, Willie, for here are subjects that are rarely mentioned in polite society.

About an hour later the little boy's mama went to the door and called, "Tommy—come out!" with that warwhoop on the last syllable which women give when they call their sons and which is supposed to set the listening angels shuddering. There was no answer, so she gave another warwhoop, and the angels throughout seven rows further back shuddered. She continued this vocal exercise until she heard a small, thin voice, which piped, "Yes, mama."

After she had found her little boy where he was trying to back away from Death's door, she said: "You have been smoking, Tommy," and he admitted the solemn fact. Now, the mama was wise in her day and generation, so she did not send for a physician, but she said:
 "You have done well Tommy. I will get you another cigar and you shall smoke all you wish."

But when she started to get the cigar, Willie, you would have been surprised and shocked to hear the little boy beg off. He said that he did not wish to smoke any more and that he felt that cigars and he were better divorced forever. You see, he did not care to be manly; he merely wanted a chance to live. So he smoked no more—until he again felt a keen desire to be real manly.

There is no moral to this story, Willie, but I should like to call your attention to the fact that a wise man can smoke, and so can a fool (and a good many do), but a wise man can do things which a fool cannot conceive, and if you wish to be splendidly manly, you had better keep your eye on the deeds that distinctively mark the wise man.—San Francisco Call.

His Plan.

Two men, who have country homes near the city, were lunching together recently. Each of them has a daughter about 17 years old. "Tom," said one of the men, "I'm worried about my little girl. She has begun to pay so much attention to young men. There's one young fellow who hangs around her, with whom I believe she is falling in love. I don't want her to marry until she's at least 21. How do you manage your girl, or do you find you can manage her?"

"You bet I do," replied the other.
 "Here's a little scheme I work on her.
 Whenever I find my daughter is becoming too fond of a young man I simply have her invite him out to spend two or three days with us—for instance, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. When he leaves she is cured. Let a 17-year old girl see a young man at breakfast, lunch and dinner two or three days in succession and you won't have to worry about her falling in love with him."— Kansas City Times.

The Dog and the Dollar.

J. T. Hannum, of Blaine, has a Scotch terrier that has been taught all kind of tricks. One of these is to hold a silver dollar on his nose and at a word from Mr. Hannum the dog throws the money into the air and as it falls catches it in his mouth. A traveling man whom Mr. Hannum was showing how nicely the dog could do the trick, asked whether the dog would perform it for him. "Try it an see," said Hannum.
 The drummer took a dollar from his pocket, placed it on the dog's nose and told the dog to catch it. Up went the coin and descended squarely into the dog's mouth, but did not stop there, but accidentally slipped down the dog's throat or was intentionally swallowed. The traveling man has since been trying to figure out whether this last feat is an additional trick to work on unsuspecting people, or whether it was purely an accident. The swallowing of the coin did not kill the dog, which is still doing tricks for those who care to risk their money.—Kansas City Journal.

A DEMOCRAT TO MR. McCALL.

Candidate in the 17th New York District Asks a Question.

New York, Sept. 25.—In an open letter to President John A. McCall of the New York Life Insurance company, Franklin Leonard, Jr., a defeated democratic candidate for Congress in the 17th district of New York city, Saturday asked Mr. McCall how much of his money, paid on a life insurance policy, had been used to defeat him. Mr. Leonard's letter was prompted by President McCall's statement before the legislative investigating committee that he had ordered a contribution of about $400,000 to the republican national campaign fund in 1904. In his letter, Mr. Leonard says: "Last year I held a policy amounting to $20,000 in the New York Life Insurance company, and paid the yearly premium. At the same time I was nominated for Congress by the democratic party in the 17th district. This was a close and doubtful district, and you will doubtless admit that large sums from the republican campaign fund were expended in the district. Personally I am satisfied that those funds helped materially to bring about my defeat. I would particularly like to know how much of my money paid to your company in trust for my little family after my death, together with the funds of more than 25,000 other democrats and friends who cast their votes for me in the 17th district, was used to bring about my defeat and to defeat the will of these voters. I venture the opinion that even my republican opponents would hardly advocate the use of my funds and the funds of thousands of other policyholders in this manner."

GLEANINGS AND GOSSIP.

The Pope does his private writing with a gold pen, but his pontifical signature is always given with a white feathered quill which is believed to come from the wing of a dove. The same quill has been in use for many years.

The hens in the United States now produce 1.2-3 billion dozens of eggs a year, and at the high average price of the year the hens during their busy season lay enough eggs in a single month to pay the year's interest on the national debt.

The Nome Nugget charges government officers with using illegal methods and taking advantage of their position to possess themselves of many valuable claims which are obtained by recon-struing the laws. It prints tables comparing the number of claims held by government officers and their relatives or assistants, and those held by the leading mining and business men of Nome and vicinity.

A writer to the London Times urges the war office to insist that all commissioned men in the army be required to pass an examination in swimming. Because for the ranks should be instructed in this art, he thinks, as regularly as in the drill regulations. "In soldier-ing," he says, "whether in peace or war there are countless occasions when the absence of this power may involve the sacrifice of valuable lives."

Princess Anna Katerina Esterhazy, a connection in marriage with the Catholic of Virginia, offers to adopt a bright young American or Englishman and be a real mother to him for $750,000 the interest on which is to be her's for life and the principal, at her death, to revert to the adopted one's family.
 The princess offers to do this in order to keep the wolf from the royal door.
 She is 56 years old. The young man will have the right to call himself Prince Esterhazy.

"After all, girls," serenely said old Aunt Broadhead, "it is the little things that count—the small essentials that go to make up the harmonious whole.
 For instance, don't accept a favor from a man as if you were doing a favor by accepting it. Again, it is just as easy to say no without yelling it. And when you dress for the street don't permit your appearance to convey the impression that you remarked to your garments, 'Clothes, I am going down town; if you want to go along, just hang on somewhere.'"—Puck.

The Rift in the Lute.

There never was a time when Mrs.
 Austin did not attempt to put the best foot forward, not only for herself, but for all her friends.

"How's Mary Ellen getting on?" asked one of the neighbors, when Mrs. Austin returned from a visit to the house of a former resident of Bushby.

"She fixed a keen gaze on Mrs. Austin, for rumors of Mary Ellen's domestic troubles had reached Bushby some time before.

"Why, she's got everything fixed up real nice," said Mrs. Austin, slowly.
 "She has a good house and yard, and a garden, and a most excellent cow, and some of the likeliest hens, and a couple of pigs and—"

"Is it true that her husband has regular temper tantrums every little while?" persisted the neighbor, who had small patience with Mrs. Austin's point of view.

"Well, well," said Mrs. Austin, with some discomposure. "I don't see any need of dwelling on that. When women folks have a good deal of live stock some of the critters is liable to be ailing now and then."—Youth's Companion.

The Diary of a Doughnut.

Somebody has just sprinkled a lot of sweet stuff over me. Now I know how it feels to have it spread on thick.

A pretty young lady has just been twisting me around her finger. She says doughnuts are like me.

The girl has tossed me aside and is playing with another doughnut, which she says is richer than I am.

She says she has been advised to have nothing to do with rich things, but I notice that she looks with considerable favor on the other doughnut.

I have been put on a plate with a dozen other helpless things that bear a general resemblance to me.

I have a feeling somehow, that I am about to start on a long journey.

A homely girl who seems to be worried about her complexion has just taken a bite of me.

Och! She likes me.

The pretty girl is repeating her thought, that doughnuts are like me.
 She says they generally consist of nothing with something around it, like a cipher.—Chicago Record-Herald.

ITS STOCK WILL ADVANCE

September 27th to $5.50.

A further advance about November 1st to $6.00 per share.
 Canada pays about $5,000,000 annually in tolls through the United States cable terminals. With other sources of revenue to be derived from various other uses, i. e., marine news service between ships, between ships and shore, by lightships, life saving stations, on trains and various uses on land, it is expected that when in full operation the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of Canada will make a net profit of $10,000,000 annually. Place your money where it will work 24 hours each day for you. You will never have much money if you depend on 3 and 4 per cent interest to make you rich. Find the newest and greatest invention and invest your money in the promotion of the enterprise. The stock sold by us is for the benefit of the treasury and for the urgent demand for the extension of the company's business. Remember a lost opportunity never returns. If you understand the value of the word "opportunity" you will act at once. Only three days more to get stock at the present price, $5.00 per share. Stock will be reserved by wire to Myrick & Co., 53 Devonshire Street, Boston, or their representative, B. A. Lantigua,
